

The Construction Products Register

The EU Construction Products Regulation (EC/305/2011) known as the CPR comes fully in force with effect from 1st July 2013. This replaces the former Construction Products Directive (CPD) which has been in place since 1990.

The CPD introduced the requirement for the CE marking of construction products placed on the EU market harmonised European standards exist. These standards referred to as "hEN's") exist for some products. Nullifire has been closely monitoring this situation. As of 1st July 2013, no products manufactured by Nullifire can be CE marked against a Harmonized Standard as no such standard is in existence.

The exact requirements for the content of the CE marking have not yet been finalised by the European Commission. It should be noted that European Technical Assessment ("ETAs") which are also referenced within the CPR are not relevant to any products within the Nullifire range at the present time.

You may be assured that Nullifire products are tested to the highest possible standards and are already subject to ISO control procedures.
